CUMMINS WAS HARD WORKER, REAL LEADER

Coolidge Loses Staunch Supporter in Senate by Senator's Death

CO-AUTHOR OF RAIL BILL

Planned to Write History of Political Experiences Before Death

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1926, By Post Pub. Co.

Paul Smith's N. Y.—"To be beaten by Brookhart"—this was the recurrent phrase which the late Senator Albert B. Cummins carried to his death as the unforgeable reproach bestowed on him by the people of Iowa after 25 years of public service.

It represented no personal feeling toward Colonel Brookhart but a deep disappointment that as between meritorious public service and liberal conservative lines and experimentalism, the voters of the state should suddenly select experience and choose a newcomer of radical thought.

Few men can understand political defeat if they have been faithful and loyal servants of their constituents. They do not see the turn of the tide in opposite directions. Mr. Cummins was warned that his state was "going radical" on the subject of farm relief. He veered to the economics of the corn belt organizers slowly, but too late, and there were some who questioned even his eleventh hour switch to the McNary-Haugen bill. It was a sincere effort, however, to understand his constituency and there is little doubt that the more he studied the subject the more convinced he became that the primary election which sent him to his defeat was symptomatic of even more extensive political revolt against eastern Republicanism.

PLANNED BIOGRAPHY

Senator Cummins had no inkling of death nor did he have any of going into complete retirement. Only a few days ago this correspondent received a letter from him discussing his plans to write a biography. Under date of July 28, Senator Cummins wrote:

"The whole subject is somewhat chaotic or at least undefined. I have for a long time had in mind to write a narrative of my life; but, until recently, I had not thought seriously of writing anything in the nature of a history of my political experiences. I have been urged to do it, but I am somewhat appalled when I think of the character of the undertaking. I have been, as you know, in public life for 25 years and have been rather closely connected with the important events of that time and with men who have carried on our affairs. I intend, shortly, to begin writing up what I call the first 25 years of my life, being the period of preparation and the second 25 years in which I devoted myself almost exclusively to my professions; but, I have not yet concluded what I shall do with the last 25 years embracing my public service. You can easily see that if I should undertake it, it would be practically a history of the last quarter of a century."

The passing of Senator Cummins will mean a loss of one vote to the regular Republicans in the session of congress which begins next December. Ordinarily, the new senator from Iowa whether he is Colonel Brookhart, the Republican nominee, or Claude Porter, the Democratic candidate, would not take office until the regular session of December 1927. Now both men probably will seek to have their names placed on the ballot as candidates for the unexpired term of Senator Cummins so that whoever is elected in November next will take his seat in December of this year.

CAL LOSER'S SUPPORTER

Colonel Brookhart's defection from the ranks of the regulars is well known, and of course, if the Republican voters of Iowa should support Mr. Porter as they did Daniel Steck, the present Democratic senator, the loss to the Republicans in the senate President Coolidge loses a staunch supporter and the margin of safety for the conservative Republicans is reduced.

In a short session of congress this may not be as important as in a long one because a minimum of legislation probably will be sought by the administration mostly appropriation bills and matters on which partisan action can be assured. Senator Cummins was well liked by his colleagues. He was an inveterate gambler. (Turn to Page 15, Col. 3)

CITIZENS TO PAY POLICE FORCE IN BANKRUPT CITY

Warren, O., (P)—The police force was back to normal Monday, assured of at least two months pay with the temporary passing of the city's financial crisis which threatened the department's existence.

City council, in an eleventh hour meeting Saturday night repealed the emergency ordinance abolishing the police force of 20 men an hour before the measure was to have become effective.

As Warren has no money to pay its policemen, the council could not repeal the ordinance until a citizens committee pledged $10,000 to operate the police, and fire-departments for the next two months. It was indicated the money would be accepted by the city only as a gift.

POLICE PROBE MAN'S STORY OF 14 MURDERS

Self Styled Arch Criminal Confesses to More Than 100 Robberies

Seattle, Wn., (P)—Seattle police Monday are trying to determine whether Tom Smith a middle aged man also known as Thomas Johnson and Kelly is an arch criminal or merely a lunatic with a vivid imagination.

"In a confession" made Saturday night, Smith "confessed" 14 murders and numerous other crimes, including 100 robberies. A check on his story is under way Monday.

The murders, Smith said, were committed in San Francisco, Hazelton, B. C. Sioux City, Iowa, Wichita, Kansas, Peoria, Minn., Minneapolis and Kansas City.

Smith walked into the police station Saturday night and said that he was tired of a life of crime and that he wanted to tell his story. When police began to look upon his account as rather wild and questioned him regarding his sanity, he admitted he escaped from an insane asylum in Missouri but as he continued his story the authorities placed more credence in it.

On the prisoner's claim that he killed Leonard Erdahl in Minneapolis his last December, police of that city telegraphed Sunday night that they were sending two detectives here in an effort to identify the self styled slayer.

Advices discrediting Smith's claims already have been received from two points—Mankato and Hazelton. Smith stated in his confession "that he began his criminal career when 11 years old by robbing a small grocery store near Salmon Arm B. C. His first slaying he said, was in San Francisco shortly before the earthquake of 1906.

KNOWN AS LONE BANDIT

He said that in Minneapolis he became known as the lone highwayman, holding up at least 50 persons in the "Summit-ave district of that city."

In the summer of 1925 he said he threw a man from a freight train during an argument. An insurance agent in Kansas City was his next victim Smith declared. The same year in Peoria, Ill., Smith claims to have murdered a policeman when cornered after a daylight holdup.

Smith said he used the names of Kelly and Bell at various times.

ASHLAND FARMER COMMITS SUICIDE

Ashland—(P)—Telling two neighbors who had come to help him put up his hay not to touch the hay as he was going to shoot himself, Edward Piescher, farmer living near Butterworth, Sunday afternoon put the muzzle of a rifle in his mouth and blew the top of his head off. No reason is known for the act.

POLICE SEEK DRIVER, WHO DID NOT STOP

Albert Janz, Neenah Dies Almost Instantly From Fractured Skull

Carried about 125 feet when he was struck by a speeding automobile, Albert Janz, 34, 615 E. Doty-ave, Neenah, was instantly killed about 1:30 Monday morning on state trunk highway 151, near the clubhouse of the Buile Des Morris Golf club.

Janz, accompanied by Edward Schneider of route 2, Appleton, was driving his Ford roadster east on 151 when a left tire of his machine was punctured. Parking the car at the right side of the road, Janz began to change tires.

Speeding from the east, the other machine struck Janz with tremendous force and carried him about 125 feet, apparently on the front of the car. Occupants of the vampire machine made no effort to aid Janz, but sped away in the darkness. Schneider suffered a severe cut below the knee of his right leg, but was unable to say whether he was struck by the other car, he telephoned for help from a farmhouse near the scene of the accident.

DIES IMMEDIATELY

Janz was rushed to St. Elizabeth hospital here in a Kunitz ambulance, where a physician declared that death was almost instantaneous, as the result of a fractured skull. The left leg and left arm was also broken.

Appleton police immediately began an investigation in an effort to locate the driver of the automobile which was the cause of the tragedy. Detective Sergeant John Duval and Patrolman Albert Deligan searched the vicinity for a trace of the death car. About one-half mile from the place of the accident, at the side of highway 151, they discovered an automobile which had collided with a tree, and a second automobile. Occupants of the two cars declared that they were traveling together, and had stopped as the result of the collision with the tree. They told the police that they knew nothing about the tragedy which resulted in the death of Janz.

One car was driven by William Loehling of Neenah and was occupied by Mr. Loehling, Mr. and Mrs. Chick Remick and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Teva of Menasha.

Jens Lauritzen, route 1, Neenah, was the owner of the other car and the driver was Clarence Anderson. The other occupants of the car were Mrs. Clarence Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. J. Anderson.

POLICE CAPT PRIM TURNED THE OCCUPANTS OF THE TWO CARS OVER TO POLICE CHIEF LYMAN OF MENASHA, FOR FURTHER QUESTIONING, AS THE ACCIDENT OCCURRED IN WINNEBAGO CO.

Schneider was unable to give a description of the vampire car or of its occupants, and police have few clues to aid them in their search. Mr. Janz is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bardo Janz of the town of Oneida; three brothers, Henry, Martin and John of Oneida; and three sisters, Mrs. Frank Nichols of Chippewa Falls, Mrs. Leonard Goffard of Kimberly, and Sister Mary Dion of the Silver Lake convent at Manitowish.

Funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning from St. Mary church at Oneida. Burial will be in St. Joseph cemetery at Appleton.

NO INCOME FROM ONE THIRD OF FARM LAND

Chicago—(P)—Practically one-third of the farm area of Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota, Wisconsin, and Minnesota produces no tangible income, E. E. Kennedy of Chicago, told the agricultural club here Monday.

This area, said Kennedy, who is secretary of the Illinois Farmers' union, represents the farm land occupied by buildings, roads, pasture and waste lands.

HELD IN MURDER CASE

These two 18-year old girls are being held in jail at Carlinville, Ill., as a result of the murder of Charles Spotti, proprietor of a soft drink parlor where they were waitresses. Opal Phillips (left) admits firing the shot that killed him, police say, while Cora McNeal (right) is held as a material witness against her chum.

Glenna's Recipe For Golf: Nerve, Work, Good Temper

Eastern Point, Conn., (P)—The girl who was hailed when she first held a golf club nine years ago as "a girl who can drive a ball like a man" Monday, when she is America's woman champion for the second time, declares "all a woman can hope for is to be as good a golfer as she can be with the handicap of being a woman."

She is Glenna Collett, at 23 twice national woman's champion, winner of international honors. She holds this view in spite of the fact that she has just won the Griswold trophy here by playing golf which sport writers describe as "a game that would have held a male star." In September at Philadelphia, she will once more defend her national title. She loves the sport, and sincerely believes it is the best there is for women, although she recognizes clearly its limitations for her sex.

Her own story of how she worked out the best woman's game brings "nerve," hard work and good temper into the formula, as well as the substitution of skill for strength and above all the assurance that not cups and titles make the game worth while, but only "the pleasure you get from swatting the ball."

"Sometimes when I get up to drive off the first tee I am so nervous that I want to lie down and die," said the woman champion. "I feel as though I couldn't possibly hit the ball, I think 'what price glory?' And 'Why suffer all this for a game of golf?' and then I do hit the ball, better than ever and get a real thrill out of it, and everything is all right, and I know why I play golf."

"But aside from this personal feeling of mine I have four reasons for thinking golf is the best sport for women, first, it doesn't mean sacrifices that a girl would not like to make," said Miss Collett, who swims, drives a car, rides, dances, enjoys bridge and the theatre and owns a host of friends off the links as well as on them.

"Second, golf is a sport in which one plays one's own game, regardless of partner or opponent, man or woman, and this is important for the athletic woman, since she is thus relying on her own strength standing on her own feet and feeling the joy of independent achievement. "Third, golf is a 'game' as well as a sport, and as such it teaches women a wonderful lesson in broad mindedness. It cannot help making women more sportsmanlike."

It is like an honor system in school. It develops the best side of a girl's character, teaching her implicit honesty with herself, generosity to an opponent, firm mindedness and self control.

WITNESS IN HALL, MILLS CASE GONE

Milwaukee Woman Who Volunteered Testimony Disappears from Hotel

Chicago—(P)—Mrs. Virginia Dorothy DeLeon Harding, wife of a Milwaukee filling station employee, who came to Chicago with the assertion that she was prepared to solve the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, was among the missing Monday. She had checked out at her hotel and her whereabouts were unknown although she was believed to be still in the city.

Officials were not inclined to take her statements any too seriously while those in New Jersey, and Mrs. Hall herself held in connection with the slaying manifested little if any interest. Mrs. Harding had found it difficult if not impossible to find railroad fare to New Jersey, officials having learned she had a penchant for traveling. She declared Mrs. Hall was innocent and she could prove it.

FIND BODY OF MAN IN LAKE MICHIGAN

Milwaukee—(P)—The body of an unidentified man clad in good clothes was found floating in Lake Michigan at the harbor entrance Sunday. There were no marks of identification.

UNCOVER NEW EVIDENCE IN MURDER CASE

Appoint State Senator Special Prosecutor in Hall-Mills Slaying Trial

Somerville, N. J., (P)—Inquiry into the murder four years ago of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, passed into new hands Monday as new evidence was forthcoming in partial support of the testimony of Mrs. Elane Gibson that she saw the slaying of the minister and his pretty choir member.

State Senator Alexander Simpson, who was appointed by Governor Moore as special prosecutor to push the case has arranged for conferences Monday with Governor Moore and Prosecutor Bergen of Somerset Co.

Governor Moore said Sunday that in addition to prosecution of the murder charge against Mrs. Hall, widow of one of the victims, Senator Simpson might take action on his own account in connection with reports that unduly hindered.

Mrs. Howard Harding, a former resident of this vicinity, telegraphed from Milwaukee Saturday to County Detective Joseph Hanlon that on the night of the crime she was accosted by four men, near the scene, and that one of the men warned her, "I'll get you if you tell what you saw here."

BEARS OUT TESTIMONY

Mrs. Harding's statement bears out testimony of Mrs. Gibson although Mrs. Gibson said Mrs. Hall charged with the murder of her husband and his young woman companion, was present at the slaying, while Mrs. Harding did not mention seeing a woman. Mrs. Harding said she was employed at that time in social service work for the Johns Manville Co. at Manville, N. J., but George Halliday, general manager said she was merely a "waitress and housekeeper" and "was never adverse to notoriety."

William Phillips, night watchman, who was arrested Thursday as a material witness was still in Somerset Co. jail Monday unable to obtain $25,000 bail, reduced from $50,000 Mr. Hall was released in $15,000 bail.

London—(P)—Israel Zangwill, perhaps the greatest contemporary Jewish writer on Jewish life, playwright and man of letters, is dead. He was 62 years old. His literary reputation was won in 1892 by his novel "The Children of the Ghetto."

Mr. Zangwill was an ardent Zionist, and founded the international Jewish territorial organization. He visited the United States in 1904, 1908 and 1923. During his latter visit he evoked much controversy over the political status of Zionism. He said that any movement to make the Zionist question a political one was hopeless.

EXPENSE BARS PROBE OF TALE TOLD BY AIMEE

District Attorney Decides County Can't Afford to Sift Evidence

Los Angeles Calif., (P)—The Aimee Semple McPherson disappearance case investigation has been discontinued again by District Attorney Asa Keyes, because he declares "It would cost the county thousands of dollars to convict any one of perjury." He also said he considers new evidence obtained at Carmel, an ocean resort north of here, as too vague to be of value.

Abandoning of the inquiry brought expressions of joy from the Angelus temple evangelist and her followers. Mrs. McPherson declared she hoped soon to be able to produce conclusive evidence to substantiate her kidnapping story.

GIRL MAY TESTIFY

Chicago—(P)—The Bungalow girl "Miss X" who Kenneth G. Ormiston, radio operator, says made a trip through California with him and stayed at a bungalow in Carmel, may yet disclose her identity to prevent any harm befalling Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist.

A deposition by Ormiston formerly employed at the Angelus temple by Mrs. McPherson, was made public here Monday exonerating her from any connection with his movements following her recent disappearance.

Refusing to identify his young woman companion other than as "Miss X a trained nurse" the radio operator said that he had sufficient confidence in her to state that "before any harm should befall Mrs. McPherson, who is entirely unable to defend herself Miss X will make an affidavit supporting mine."

NED ALLIS TOPS STATE GOLFERS

Milwaukee Star, Several-time Champ, Shoots 73 in Qualifying Round Monday

Milwaukee—(P)—Ned Allis, many times former champion from the Milwaukee club, went into the lead in the qualifying round of the Wisconsin Amateur Golf association tournament shortly before 2 o'clock Monday afternoon with a 73. Billy Sixty, Muchwaukee, scored a 76. Len Fons of Vay view, Milwaukee, with a 74 and his brother Al of the same club with a 75 were in second and third. Phil Adler of Woodmont and Henry Miller had 77's. As the players continued to report their cards it appeared that there would probably be 32 players who would register under 81 in the two day's qualifying tests.

The scoring was unusually high even for so large a field and most of the difficulties were attributed to the rain of the past two days. Monday will tell the tale of the Milwaukee qualifiers, and Tuesday the men from the state will begin hammering the ball, with prospects of a heavy entry of state players in the championship fight if the conditions of the course improve.

EPISCOPATE IS ANXIOUS FOR TRUCE IN ROW

Would Suspend War Until People Can Express Selves by Plebiscite

CAPITAL CITY PEACEFUL

Stenographer Suspected of Heading Conspiracy to Kill President

Mexico City—(P)—An announcement that the Catholic episcopate is willing to enter upon a truce with the Mexican government until the Mexicans can people are able to express themselves by plebiscite on the religious controversy, and the discovery of a plot to assassinate President Calles, were the outstanding features of Mexico's first priestless Sunday.

Notwithstanding the great parade on the regional confederation of labor which required two hours to pass at given point, the day was as peaceful as one as the capital ever has known. While the marchers passed the place where President Calles surrounded by his ministers, stood waving his handkerchief in answer to the cheering members of the faithful were kneeling in prayer in various churches, beseeching an amelioration of the situation brought about by the government putting into force its new religious regulations.

All the catholic churches, without priests on the altars were open for prayer and meditation. Dispatches from all parts of the republic indicate that tranquility prevailed Sunday everywhere.

EPISCOPATE WANTS TRUCE

The expression of willingness to arrange a truce with the government was made exclusively to the Associated Press by the Episcopate. It was suggested that it should run for a reasonable length of time to give the people a chance to vote on the situation growing out of the religious controversy. Meanwhile the episcopate would have the new religious regulations and the anti-religious persecutions suspended.

"On its part" says the statement, "the episcopate is willing to give a solution to the conflict that may save public liberties and at the same time not be unbecoming to the government."

The alleged conspiracy to kill President Calles is said to have been headed by Miss Dolores Lemus a young stenographer who has a position in the city hall, which overlooks the presidential palace. Miss Lemus and several other women and men are being detained by the police.

The police say that all those being held are members of the defense society. In the capitol the bull fight drew the usual crowd of spectators as also was the case with the moving picture and other theatres. Restaurants and cafes had their normal patronage.

The economic boycott of the league for defense of religious liberty, has taken effect at various places, but its extent has not yet become apparent. Special dispatches from Guadalajara say one woman and one policeman were killed and nine Catholics wounded in clashes following the suspension of services at the church of San Juan De Dios Saturday night.

Rajamaki was about 45 years of age and no far as known had no relatives. The remains were brought to this city. Coroner Joseph Friend investigated.

ZIMMERMAN AND LENROOT PACT HOTLY DENIED

Representative of Zimmerman Campaign Organization Replies to Lorenz

Milwaukee—(P)—Denial that a compact exists between Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman, progressive Republican candidate for governor, and Senator Irvine L. Lenroot to trade support was made here Monday by J. Maxwell Murphy of the Zimmerman campaign organization.

The statement was in reply to Ira S. Lorenz, campaign manager for Attorney General Herman L. Ekern. LaFollette progressive candidate for governor, who charged last week that he had positive evidence of the existence of a compact between the two camps.

"Attorney General Ekern, the Tammany boss candidate for governor," declared Mr. Murphy "and his campaign manager realize that he is tied to the most unpopular and discredited policies of state government ever formulated in Wisconsin and they are willing to go to any length to distract public attention to the side lines."

"Mr. Lorenz says he has positive evidence of a compact between Mr. Zimmerman and Senator Lenroot. Mr. Zimmerman is not supporting either candidate for the United States Senate neither is he opposing them. He is making his campaign on state issues alone and is not injecting federal affairs which concern the duties of a governor no more than they do those of a janitor."

"Fred Zimmerman is a candidate for governor on a straight forward progressive platform which anyone can understand. He doesn't have to juggle with dead issues and irrelevant propositions to cover up a shady record or a political compact of questionable sincerity. He has made no entangling alliances. Can Mr. Ekern say as much?"

STATE HAS EYES ON BUS HEARING

Developments of Fight for Federal Regulation Watched With Interest

Madison—(P)—Wisconsin is watching the developments in the fight for federal regulation of interstate bus and truck lines and was represented at the interstate commerce commission hearing on the matter in Chicago last week.

P. H. Porter, law examiner of the Wisconsin railroad commissioner, attended the hearing, one of a series being held throughout the country by the commission upon its own initiative.

The Wisconsin representative presented the commission with statistics on the motor transportation industry in this state but did not say whether the commission will take any attitude for or against federal regulation.

While emphasizing that it cannot be presented as the present attitude of the commission towards federal regulation, Mr. Porter recalled that the railroad governing body has approved the bill introduced in congress at the suggestion of the National Association of Railway and Utilities Commissioners. The bill would regulate interstate bus and truck business but would designate state railroad and utilities commissions as agents of the federal government in aiding compliance with provisions of the law.

Mr. Porter believes the danger of centralized government might prove troublesome in attempting to regulate the bus business from Washington.

Wisconsin has many lines carrying passengers and freight between Wisconsin and neighboring states which would come under the classification of interstate business.

The state has 51 bus lines engaged in interstate business and many trucks, hauling freight between Wisconsin and other states, Illinois largely.

FORMER GRECIAN KING MAY SEEK WORK IN U. S.

Up to Date Young Sovereign and Pretty Wife Living on Charity

Bucharest.—(A)—King George of Greece, throneless and jobless, soon may go to the United States to seek work. Since his forced abdication in 1925, the young sovereign virtually has been living on the charity of friends and relatives. He and his pretty wife, Elizabeth, the eldest daughter of Queen Marie of Rumania, lived until recently in two small rooms of the Royal Palace at Cotroceni, near Bucharest. They did not eat with the king and queen of Rumania, but had their meals alone in their modest apartment and generally lived in the most frugal way.

FUNDS GIVE OUT
Now, however, their funds have given out, and the former king of the Hellenes says he must find a job. Friends in the United States have urged him and the former queen to go there, promising both of them remunerative positions.

But Elizabeth, who is a retiring girl, is afraid they will not be able to stand the commercial and social life in America. For the present they have separated, George going to his Danish relatives in Copenhagen, and Elizabeth coming her mother-in-law, former Queen Sophie (sister of Kaiser Wilhelm) at Florence. Later they will meet in Florence, and then decide their future plans.

LOSES HOPE
Although he still signs himself "George Rex," the former Greek sovereign's friends say he has definitely abandoned all hope of regaining the Hellenic throne. He recently was offered a position with a big Florida real estate concern, the officials of which believed he would be useful in interesting the crowned heads of Europe and wealthy aristocrats in American real estate. But George felt he had no experience or training that would qualify him as a salesman or promoter, and declined the position, which would have paid him $40,000 a year in salary and commission.

REFUSED BIG ANNUITY
In this connection, it is interesting to recall that the former ruler of Greece already had refused an offer of $50,000 a year from the Greek revolutionary government if he would voluntarily abdicate as king. He chose, however, to retire only under threat of force, thus spurning an income that would easily have kept him and his wife in comfortable circumstances for life. His friends say that he and his consort regret his action, "as there appears no prospect whatever that the Greek people will recall him to the throne. Moreover, he has no source of income except from small property holdings in Athens."

BUYING OR DECEIVING VOTERS
Mrs. Dorothy Lenroot Black, daughter of Senator Lenroot, made a telling comparison in her talk at DePere on two sinister political methods that are loose in the land. Denouncing the use of money for political purposes, Mrs. Black emphasized the fact that misrepresentation to voters in order to get their votes is as wrong morally as buying the votes. We think she has spoken a great truth. Aspirants for office who take the public platform and by direct statement or cunning innuendo spread slanders about their opponents, are doing as effective work in the deterioration of our government as any Pennsylvania or Illinois politician who garners a pot of gold and buys votes.

In particular Mrs. Black nailed two Blaine misstatements to the mast. The Blaine organization has been diligently attempting to broadcast the inference that Senator Lenroot is a wealthy man. Mrs. Black answered that by saying: "If my father died today the amount of property he would leave would be less than one-half of the estate of the late Senator LaFollette who died a relatively poor man."

The other misstatement was in connection with the recent visit of Magnus Johnson and his public address at DePere. Magnus, it will be remembered, is the platform orator who cannot express his thoughts without frequent use of "hell" and "damn." And the misstatement attributed to Magnus was his attempt to take from Senator Lenroot the credit to which the latter is entitled for his effective work in excluding foreign butter from the American market. Before Senator Lenroot went to work the duty on butter imported into the United States was 8 cents a pound. Even with that protection it was found that large importations came from Denmark and as far away as Australia, to undersell the Wisconsin product. Senator Lenroot is very familiar with the machinery of government and knew what to do. He made complaint to the tariff commission and requested that commission to recommend to the president that the tariff be increased. Under the law, if such a recommendation were made, the president would have the right to increase the duty on butter fifty per cent or in other words raise it to 12 cents a pound. The tariff commission did nothing. Senator Lenroot then went to President Coolidge directly and no doubt because of the fact that the president has confidence in his judgment and integrity, the president ordered the tariff commission to make an investigation and report. Upon receiving such report the president entered an executive order raising the tariff from eight to twelve cents a pound. In this manner Senator Lenroot gained for the farmer all that could possibly be gained under the existing laws. But he was not content with that. Senator Lenroot then introduced a bill to prohibit the importation of certain dairy products unless, upon inspection, they were found to be on a par with American products. He did this with the knowledge that the mere inspection of such products would exclude them and that regardless of any tariff.

We have recited these facts so that the people and farmers in particular may know the constructive and effective work that may be done by an able and intelligent senator and also that the same people may know how grossly the Blaine organization is attempting to deceive them. The public must not be surprised at Blaine's fear of meeting Lenroot on the platform. The Blaine organization will go on the rocks entirely if the people who listen to its arguments are given at the same time the other side of the question. There was a time when candidates for office were not afraid of meeting their opponents in public but that was "when men were men."

THE PHILIPPINE SURVEY
The survey of the Philippines being carried on by Carmi A. Thompson, President Coolidge's representative, is beginning to bear fruit in an impartial report on just what the conditions are in the Philippines and just how much sentiment there is there for complete independence of the islands. Heretofore every report on the islands was biased, either in favor of one side or the other. Mr. Thompson's report is impartial, and it indicates what is undoubtedly the true status of Philippine politics.

His conclusion so far is that the islands themselves do not want and are not ready for complete independence and that the only real sentiment for independence can be found in Manila where the movement is well organized. In other words, there is a small group of men in Manila who would try to wrest the islands from American domination so as to exploit them for their own gain. Mr. Thompson's report does not say just that, but a spade can still be called a spade. If the majority of the islanders do not want independence, that is one thing; if they do, that is another.

Of course, there is another angle to consider, and that is that the islanders are comparatively uneducated. This would permit more weight to be given the opinions of those islanders who are well educated, for it would be presumed that they were competent to speak for the mass. The present survey, however, was undertaken with a view to compile enough facts from which a proper estimate of the public sentiment can be deduced. So far the survey has been successful in bringing to light many interesting facts and no doubt upon its completion it will lead to a real solution of the vexing Philippine problem.

WORLD NEEDS DISARMAMENT
According to statistics prepared by the League of Nations, Great Britain is spending annually on its military establishment, including army, navy and aviation, $12.96 per capita. France follows, with an average expenditure of $6.34 per capita. Italy is spending $3.86 per capita and Japan $3.68, while Germany's expenditures are the least of all, or $1.70 per capita.

These figures are illuminative. They show that the two great powers of the world least able to bear a burden for war purposes are carrying the heaviest loads. All of them are paying much more than they should, and this is obviously due to the fact that no effective, comprehensive scheme of disarmament has been adopted. If the figures are correct as to Germany, both the British and French budgets are excessive. The United States, measured by its resources, debt and wealth, is bearing the smallest burden of any. Germany included. In terms of ability to pay, its $4.90 per capita annually is a small sum, but for Great Britain a budget of $573,000,000 annually is a terrific strain. If half of it could be used for constructive work and the repayment of her obligations, she would soon be out of the woods. The same applies to France.

Obviously, the need of the world today, from an economic and moral standpoint, is to get together in some practical plan for disarmament and a reduction of topheavy military establishments. We could have a deal more sympathy with Europe in its financial troubles if it would show a greater willingness to engage in peace undertakings and extensive disarmament.

TODAY'S POEM
By HAL COCHRAN
Baby waddles up to dad, and climbs upon his knee, Ben held makes baby glad; she's happy as kin be. Finds that father's feelin' fine, so then the child will shout, "Gimme penny, will ya dad?" And father shells right out.
Son, who's sixteen years or so, pays dad a call downtown. Father always seems to know just why he's called around. Chats about a thing or two and then relies on luck. Springs the same old "Gimme" gag—and father's out a buck.
Grown-up sister flatters dad when he comes home at night. She knows how to handle him, and get him feelin' right. Then, when father spreads a smile, she begs a brand new hat. "Gimme just ten dollars, pop." And father pays for that.
All the kids have had their turn. The old man rests at ease. Gosh, he'd give to them, then listen to them tease. "Gimme! Gimme!" all day long, but what kin father say? He knows that what the kids don't get his wife will, anyway.

BUNION'S PROGRESS
In the day's news I note with dismay an item telling of the new fashions in shoes for men, as this has been fixed upon by the London boot makers. We're gonna have pointed toes, a revival of the dainty tootnick last of father's day, with cute little heels two inches high. The women are to affect rather a broader toe and a lower heel than ever now. It will be more difficult than ever to distinguish 'em this fall.
If these dainty creations do come back, in this country, the bunion business will no doubt experience a revival. If I have to go to work again I believe I shall go in for orthopedic surgery. Recent tendencies toward wide, roomy last three need to make bunions extinct. The disappearance of such disabilities of the feet probably does not boom the sale of what purports to be corrective foot wear, and so the shoe manufacturers decreed a return to the freak fashion.

A good many people think a bunion is just a large or hospital size corn, and they assume that a good corn remedy is likewise a good bunion remedy. They speak of the "removal" of a bunion as though it were an excrescence or growth upon the foot. This complacent notion is fostered by the vendors of bunion plasters which purport to cure something which nothing short of surgery can cure. But it is not strange that people have these weird ideas about bunions. The physicians and surgeons, or at any rate the surgeons, entertain some funny notions about bunions, among them the one that it is hereditary. That suggestion, absurd though it sounds, was seriously made by some good operating surgeons in a symposium on the subject of bunions two or three years ago.

Bunion is a dislocation, complete or incomplete, of the great toe joint. It is invariably an acquired deformity or disability. Never congenital—that is, never present at the time of birth. (I tried to speak of congenital hip disease recently, and the erudite editor who prepared the article for publication changed the word to "congenital." A defenseless author is not always as silly as he seems.)

If bunions were only a complete or incomplete dislocation it would be painless though unsightly and annoying. As a rule the head of the metatarsal bone of the joint (metatarsal) becomes more or less thickened and enlarged and the little bursa or friction pad over the joint becomes inflamed and finally infected so that suppuration and perhaps more or less purulent discharge occurs. This inflammatory complication is responsible for the pain of bunions. Of course it is all due to the pressure and distortion produced by shoes which are too narrow, too tight, too pointed and too widely divergent from the proper straight inside sole line.

The soreness and pain of acute inflammation about the bunion is best relieved by a large moist dressing of alcohol or some simple alcoholic lotion such as toilet water or witch hazel, which dressing should be worn overnight.

Adopting and never relapsing from proper shoes, or better no shoes when ever the shoes may be dispensed with, will prevent the progress of bunions from bad to worse, if this reform is not too long postponed. The cure of established bunions requires removal of the thickened portion of the metatarsal bone, perhaps removal of the infected bursa, and reduction of the dislocation. This keeps the patient off the feet for two weeks.

If you are developing a bunion, or if you want more detailed information and advice about shoes and the care of your feet, I'll be glad to mail you a monograph on the subject, which I hope you will find helpful. Do not send a clipping, but just ask for the monograph and enclose with your request a stamped envelope bearing your address.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
A Pilgrim With a Bunion
Is it impossible without an operation to have bunions removed from the feet? Or to make the bones grow smaller so as not to cause the shoe to be shaped poorly?
Answer—No. Read the article entitled Bunions' Progress. Write for the information and advice about the care of the feet.

RUSSIAN RULERS MAY EVOLVE NEW CLASS OF NOBLES

Repeated Reelections Are Perpetuating Office-holders in Power

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Washington, D. C. — Students of peoples and of governments are bending a close scrutiny on Russia in an effort to glean some foreshadowing of the evolution which they feel sure must take place in the vast Slavic empire. While almost anyone, if casually asked the question, would be likely to declare that Russia will never return to anything approaching the old czarist type of government, other observers are not so sure.
Those who would direct the political future of Russia may be divided into three groups. One is composed of those who hold that the soviet form of government has come to stay and that while expediency may dictate some concessions to modern industrial forms of property holding, the socialist theory will remain paramount.
The second group is composed of the remnants of the old regime, supporters of the ancient Russian nobility. They form quite a numerous party and maintain a sort of headquarters in Paris. The Grand Duke Cyril occupies the position of pretender to the throne of Russia, and he has the support of thousands of Russian refugees. But, so far, no other action has shown any disposition to back him in his plans for a restoration of the Romanoff house. The princely families of Russia are numerous. Their scions are to be found in many European courts and, were it possible to organize military support, there would be no difficulty in finding a number of nobles with direct or indirect claims to the throne. In the present state of the world, neither one of these groups seems likely to succeed. The soviet idea shows many signs of disintegration under pressure of the outside world. The impracticability of a great people doing business at arm's length with the rest of the world is wearing away the soviet independence of economic action. Business expediency is entering the wedge to a restoration of at least a partially capitalistic system.

No great outstanding leader rises above the royal pretenders and the poverty of this group also furnishes a strong bar to their recapture of the Russian government.
POLITICIANS GAIN POWER
The third group of possible future rulers of Russia is made up of the existing officeholders under the soviet system. Information from Russia is to the effect that the principal leaders are reelected to office term after term. Education is not widespread in Russia and the enlightened group is not numerous. Material for office is not notably abundant.
Thus, by a sort of political gravitation, the offices go year after year to the same persons or at least to members of the same general class; that is, the educated, people rather than the peasants. To be sure, strong and able figures arise from the peasant class as they have in all nations, but, upon attaining office, these are absorbed in a manner by the office-holding party.
The experience of mankind is that where offices are held, more or less by common consent, by the same man or group, the tendency is for them to become hereditary. The transition may be slow at first. The son of the father goes through the process of popular election for a while, but there is a strong likelihood, among such a people as the Russians, that this form sooner or later will fall into desuetude.

Therefore, it seems not improbable that the peoples' commissars of today may be the grand dukes of tomorrow and from this group of grand dukes it is no more improbable that one might be chosen a czar. Quite likely some of the old nobles might get into the new aristocracy and it is certain that newcomers in the industrial field, rich men who rise to business power in the world of finance, might find places in the new nobility.

Russia, until a decade ago had always lived under an aristocratic form of government and it is by no means unlikely that she will again, but the prospects of the new aristocracy seem brighter than those of the old.

There would be nothing at all strange about such a transition, where a class of officeholders selects there is a sort of tacit conspiracy among them to support each other. Every aristocracy in the history of the world has been ruled by its own members rather than by the masses of the people. To this day, in England, a peer can be tried for any offense only by his peers. The aristocrat need fear his fellows more than the people and must look to them, rather than to the people, for support.
NORSEMAN FOUNDED EMPIRE
Rurik, who founded the Russian Empire in 882, was a Norseman adventurer. He did not come into Russia as a king, but made himself one. And he made the chiefs who supported his depredations his nobles. Thus the first Russian aristocracy was formed. Ivan the Terrible, about 1500, cemented the hold Rurik had fastened on the great country and his dynasty held it until the success of the Romanoffs in 1613. This family, raised from relative obscurity, ruled until the soviet revolution.

Kings have to start somewhere. The kingdom of Montenegro was started by a Russian soldier refugee with a strong arm and an ingenious mind. History of Rome is dotted with instances of the rise of obscure persons to the throne. Another of the outstanding examples is that furnished by Napoleon, a younger son of a poor Corsican. He rose on the shoulders of the people in the midst of political turmoil not greatly different from the which took place in Russia. Yet he became first Consul and then Emperor. He put his brothers on thrones. One of Napoleon's marshals, son of a country lawyer, started private in the ranks. When the line of kings of Sweden became extinct, the Swedish nation invited Marshal Bernadotte to take the throne. He did so and the Crown Prince of Sweden, who has been visiting the United States, is his descendant. William, Prince of Orange, was invited to become king of England. Theodore, who became Empress of Rome in his own right, was the daughter of the keeper of the beas in the arena of Constantinople.

All history comes with situation not greatly different from the situation in Russia today. Even in the early of the American republic, they was a ruling class. Practically all of the holders were picked from the class. Andrew Jackson was the first man to rise from the ranks of the people and it cost him a bitter fight to do so. Martin Van Buren, in his autobiography, declares that John Adams, the second President of the United States, was disappointed because he did not become king. Mar Americans wanted him to be. Aaric Burr attempted to found an empire in the West.

If a people as enlightened as the French were only a little over a hundred years ago could go through a popular revolution to get rid of a king and then elevate an emperor of that revolution's ashes, if the Americans could even entertain the idea of choosing a king instead of a president, as many of them did, it would not be surprising to see the Russian largely an illiterate mass, raise up new nobility and a new dynasty.

Q. Tell something of Tristan da Cunha, J. D. K.
A. Tristan da Cunha is the name of a group of three small volcanic islands in the South Atlantic Ocean, 1500 miles south southwest of St. Helena and nearly midway between Cape Town and Buenos Aires. The total area is 4 square miles. The largest and only inhabited island consists of an extinct volcano, 8500 high. The climate is equable and healthful. The inhabitants number 102 in 1914 (latest available statistics). They are chiefly the descendants of the British soldiers stationed there during Napoleon's captivity at St. Helena and of settlers from whaling ships. They are supported by agriculture and have a considerable number of cattle. They are also remarkable for having no organized form of government. Access to the outer world is maintained by the annual visit of a British warship.

NINON TELLS HOW TO HAVE PRETTY EYEBROWS AND LASHES

KATHERINE BURKE SHOWING HOW TO BRUSH THE EYEBROWS

BY NINON
Symptoms—Scant, scraggly condition of the eyebrows, instead of a normal luxuriant growth.
Diagnosis—This is often the result of improper diet. Or the same condition which prevails on the scalp and causes the hair to fall may be responsible. Usually local attention is sufficient.
Treatment—Invest in some white vasoline and an eyebrow brush—a few cents only. Brush the brows night and morning, and then rub over the surface with the vasoline. This stimulates circulation and encourages growth. Pulling the brows strengthens them if you aren't too vigorous about it. Just take a portion firmly between the thumb and forefinger and pull with an even pressure—not a jerk.

KAUKAUNA NEWS

G. W. PATTON Telephone 298-J
Kaukauna RepresentativeFORMATION OF
FOOTBALL TEAM
IS UNCERTAINBackers Fear That Support of Grid Squad Will Be Insufficient

Kaukauna—The question uppermost in the minds of local sportsmen right now is whether Kaukauna will be represented by an amateur football squad. The city has had the champion Legion squad for the past five years, having won the state amateur title each year. It has never been defeated by a valley squad. Only three games have ever been lost, one of which was to the Green Bay Packers, the cream of the middle west. The Legionaires in past seasons have played every team they could schedule to a game with regardless of strength or reputation. In their game with the big Bay Blues they held the Packers to a smaller score than many other supposedly stronger teams did. Two years ago they defeated the Laumenn Twins of Marinette, semi-pro champions of the northwest, at Marinette.

Only one thing has kept the Legion from definitely deciding upon entering a team in the amateur field this year, and that is the doubt of sufficient support by the people. Every year the Legion has lost two or three hundred dollars on the team, but it would not mind the loss if enough people would get out to watch the team. A few years ago a large crowd was always on hand to see the Legionaires play, but the last few years interest in the team seems to have waned.

STANDARD ARTERIAL
SIGNS ARE ERECTED

Kaukauna—All of Kaukauna's traffic signs now correspond with those recommended by the various representatives of state highway commissions at a meeting held in Washington, D. C., earlier in the year. Every arterial sign has the letters painted in black on a yellow background, as recommended by this body. The signs have been placed about six feet away from the arterial highway, thus giving the motorist plenty of time to stop.

WILL ERECT SIGNS TO TOURIST PARK

Kaukauna—Three signs will be erected in the city directing tourists to Kaukauna's tourist campsite. They will be placed at the corner of Wisconsin-ave and Lawst, visible to all traffic on highways 15 and 55, at the intersection of Depot-st and Wisconsin-ave. The park continues to be a popular place for tourists and every week several picnics are held at the grounds. The city is considering several minor repairs at the park within the next few days.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS
PICNIC OF LUTHERANS

Kaukauna—Ever threatening skies could not keep a large crowd away from the annual Lutheran picnic Sunday at the north side Lutheran park. Close to four hundred attended and proclaimed it a success. The big feature of the day was the tug-of-war between the south side men and the north side men, which was won by the former after much struggling. At times it seemed as though the north side might win but their south side brethren finally proved too husky.

WILL PLAY KIMBERLY

Kaukauna—Kaukauna's junior baseball team engages the Kimberly junior team at the local park at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Both teams are tied for first place in the Fox River Junior Baseball league and the winner of the first round will be determined by this game. "Ossie" Cook, Kimberly-Clark athletic manager and former Lawrence college athletic star, manages the Kimberly team and is developing his youngsters into a fast team. This is shown by their 5 to 0 win over the strong Neenah team recently.

MARKSMEN WILL ATTEND SHOOTWill Participate in Meet at Manitowoc Gun Club Next Sunday

Manitowoc—A score of local marksmen will attend the gun club shoot at Manitowoc at 9:30 a. m. next Sunday under the auspices of the Manitowoc Gun club. Marksmen will be divided into four classes, and valuable trophies will be awarded in each event. Members of the Northeastern Transhooting league and of the American Transhooting association may receive special consideration in fees. The big feature of the day will be the challenge shoot between the Manitowoc club and the Milwaukee gun club. The program consists of 100 pairs of single targets and 24 pairs of doubles. Shooters may shoot all or part of the program.

The Manitowoc Gun club is located on state trunk highway 17 about two miles from Manitowoc on the way to Two Rivers. A duck shoot also will be held the same day. Jay Graham, former Olympic champion who has a long record of 482 straight, and C. W. Olney, three times winner of the state championship and the world's champion on doubles, will attend.

Social Items

Kaukauna—St. Anne's court of the Catholic Order of Foresters will hold its regular meeting Tuesday evening in the north side Forester hall. A class of candidates will be initiated and a door prize will be given. All members are urged to attend.

The Masons will hold their regular meeting Monday evening in the Masonic hall on Third-st. Routine business will be transacted.

Free Samples New Herbal Remedy, Given by Drecto Man at SCHLITZ BROS. DOWNTOWN DRUG STORE

"For years I suffered with my stomach and kidneys and in spite of taking every medicine I could get hold of I steadily grew worse and finally got so bad I had to stop work and was dependent of ever going back again." This statement was given to the Drecto man by Mr. Clarence Williams, 511 N. Park-st., Kalamazoo, Mich.

"My appetite was poor and what little I did eat soured and promptly turned to gas which kept me in continued misery. I had severe pains across my back and my rundown condition so shattered my nerves that at night I'd toss and roll for hours staring wide awake at the ceiling."

"Three weeks ago I started on Drecto and now am like a new man. I have a wonderful appetite and food digests without any trouble. The pains in my back have disappeared, my nerves have been steadied and I sleep fine. I'm getting stronger everyday and expect to go back to work again after taking another bottle or two of Drecto."

The Drecto man has made a study of the human body and the ailments from which it suffers. His specialty is showing sufferers from disordered stomachs, sluggish livers, weak kidneys, constipation and their attendant ills how to get well thru using this remarkable herbal tonic.

Mr. W. V. Martin, the well-known expert from the Drecto Laboratories now at Schlitz Bros. downtown drug store, is telling scores of people every day how to take Drecto for best results. Go to see him.

EMINENT PLAYERS

IN "MISS NOBODY"
An eminent cast was gathered by First National in support of Anna Q. Nilsson, who has the featured feminine lead in "Miss Nobody," now showing at the Elite theater.

The featured supporting cast comprises Louise Fazenda, Walter Pidgeon, Mitchell Lewis, Clyde Cooke, and Arthur Stone. Lambert Hillier, dressed "Miss Nobody," with Gunning, noted screen critic, exercised editorial guidance.

"Miss Nobody" is an adaptation of Tiffany Wells' novel "Shebo," which gained enormous popularity in book and serial form. It is a story of hobo life, with Miss Nobody or Shebo, as queen of the tramps.

Miss Nilsson's role in "Miss Nobody" is reminiscent of her immensely successful role in "Ponjola," when she wore male attire. In "Miss Nobody" it is the attire of a tramp.

The story of "Miss Nobody" details the adventures of a society girl who seeks the solace of vagabondage rather than suffer the indignity of dependence upon friends when her father's fortune goes by the board. In the actual filming of "Miss Nobody," Miss Nilsson exhibited rare daring in "riding the rods," walking along careening freight trains and rolling down embankments. Once she had a narrow escape when a rattlesnake nearly bit her. The snake was killed and its skin made into shoes for the beautiful star.

EAST SIDE RICHEST IN FICTION MATERIAL STAR FINDS

That the East Side is richer in fiction material than any other part of New York City, the whole of the States, or the world, altogether, is the opinion held by William T. Tilden, tennis champion, writer, and actor.

Tilden bases this contention on the fact that the inhabitants of the East Side are most of them in a strange new atmosphere with which they are not familiar, that they are among alien people, and that poverty and comedy stalk among them, hand in hand. And his first story for the screen, "The Highbinders," has its locale in the depths of the Lower East Side.

"The Highbinders" at the New Bijou today and Tuesday, is a rushing swiftly told tale of a young novelist who took a studio among the slums, fell in love with the niece of a gangster, rescued her from a terrible fate and after losing and regaining his memory through an exciting sequence, wins love and fame and happiness.

Calder Johnston has adapted this story to the screen and Tilden himself is starred in the production, which is released by Associated Exhibitors.

Marjorie Daw plays opposite as the gangster's niece, while other parts are held by such prominent players as George Marion, George Hackathorne, Walter Lang, Ben Alexander, and others, equally well-known.

"FASCINATING YOUTH" REAL NOVELTY FILM DUE AT APPLETON THEATRE

Something new in pictures!

That's the only way. "Fascinating Youth," Paramount's latest comedy which comes to the Fischers Appleton theater on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week, can be described. It is the result of the Paramount Picture School's first term of work. The principal roles are all enacted by students of the cinema laboratory.

You'll remember the much publicized school was organized some months ago by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, in an endeavor to introduce a new group of faces to movie-goers. The sixteen young men and women seen in "Fascinating Youth" were selected and taken from every walk of life. Some were artists' models, others, college students, still another, a teacher, one, a newspaper reporter, and son on, ad infinitum.

Let us forget what they were—suffer it that you now know they are players—every one a fine "trouser" Director Sam Wood, the man who made many of the Gloria Swanson and Wallie Reed successes, believes

GULBRANSEN The Registering Piano

Because you cannot play have you allowed the greatest joy of music to elude you?

You are seated at your piano—playing. Your mood—something of your very self—has entered into the music—your music. Your touch, your expression, your personality give color to the melody. You are expressing yourself in the most wonderful of languages—the language of music.

Nothing can take the place of this—just listening cannot compare!

And now this deep enjoyment can so easily be yours. The Gulbransen Registering Piano has made it possible. Only the Gulbransen has the special patented construction—the Registering feature—which registers exactly your individual touch. Ordinary roll-played pianos, lacking this feature, sound mechanical. The Gulbransen, having it, is responsive, personal, human. It gives you all the enjoyment of hand playing. Its music cannot be told from hand playing. Be sure that the piano you select bears the name "Gulbransen." For only the Gulbransen can give you the musical enjoyment you have so often longed for.

A small cash payment will put the Gulbransen Registering Piano in your home. Subsequent payments to suit your convenience. Allowance will be made for your present piano or other musical instrument.

EKERN IN FAVOR OF INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM

Is Sound Instrument of Free Government, Candidate for Governor Says

Brussels, Wis.—(P)—Asserting the initiative and referendum is a "sound instrument of free government," Attorney General Herman L. Ekern declared here Monday that if elected governor he will work for adoption of a constitutional amendment to give it to the state.

"The true progressive can be told from the false progressive by whether he supports giving to the people the right by their votes to adopt a law or to prove or reject the initiative and referendum," declared the gubernatorial candidate.

"As governor I shall recommend to the coming legislature, prompt action ratifying this amendment and giving the people the opportunity to take over this very important part of government by a people," Mr. Ekern declared. "The referendum is a club whereby the people keep the power to veto a bad law passed by the legislature. It is very important additional safeguard to free government. The initiative gives to the people the power to propose a law and under the proposed amendment this proposal will go first before the legislature. If the legislature then fails to act, the people may by their votes enact the law they want."

"The real progressive supports the initiative and referendum. Stalwarts, reactionaries and false progressives oppose it. The 1925 legislature adopted a proposed amendment to our state constitution for the initiative and referendum. This must be acted upon by the coming legislature, before it can be submitted to the people for their approval."

"The great advantage of direct legislation by vote of the people is that it lets in the daylight on the schemes of exploiting profiteers. Their jobs can only be done in the dark. The initiative and referendum is opposed in the same way, but when the people once understand what a weapon it really is for good government, the predatory rich, their lawyers, hangers-on and dependents will be driven into the open."

Los Angeles Votes For Men As Best For Piloting Cars

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the ninth of a series of articles on men and women as automobile drivers. Traffic police in nine cities were interviewed, and voted, 5 to 4, for women as better drivers.

Los Angeles—Perhaps I'm prejudiced but I'll cast my lot with the men.

That is the way Officer T. F. Brown answered the question as whether men or women are the better drivers. Brown has been directing traffic at 7th and Broadway, Los Angeles' busiest corner, for eight years. During this time he has formed some very definite opinions about the thousands of men and women drivers who pass his daily.

BLAINE WILL GIVE 27 ADDRESSES THIS WEEK

Madison—(P) Twenty-seven audiences will be addressed this week by Governor John J. Blaine in his campaign for the United States senate seat of Irvine L. Lenroot. His itinerary, which takes him into the Fox River valley, was announced Monday by his campaign headquarters.

LAFOLLETTE LAUDS EKERN'S WAR RECORD

Evansville—(P)—Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., recited the war record of Attorney General Herman L. Ekern, La Follette progressive candidate for governor of which he asserted his enemies had attempted to "rob him." Senator La Follette resumed the stump with his speech Monday after a week in Chicago as a member of the senate campaign funds investigating committee.

LENROOT LIQUOR VOTE IS TARGET

Governor Says Opponent Is Hunting Cyclone Cellar to Find Shelter

Coleman—(P)—Governor Blaine asserted Monday that his opponent "is hunting a cyclone cellar in which to find shelter against his vote for the Volstead act."

"There are those, who, intolerant in practice, when seeking liberal votes run to cover on the wet and dry question," declared Mr. Blaine. "My opponent is hunting a cyclone cellar in which to find shelter against his vote for the Volstead act. It would be interesting to the people of this state to know the roll call on the Volstead act. On the vote on the Volstead act, taken Oct. 28, 1913, in the Senate, Senator Lenroot voted for the Volstead act, Senator LaFollette voted against the Volstead act."

"My opponent now suddenly falls in love with a referendum—a referendum that has no legal force, and I am informed he wants the governor to call a special session of the legislature, at a cost of six or seven thousand dollars, to give him a chance to know whether he is 'wet' or 'dry.'"

"If he favors a real referendum, why did he not offer one to the Volstead act when it was up for passage in Congress? Why wasn't the Volstead act submitted to a vote of the people of this country instead of being jammed through Congress under the whip and lash of wartime frenzy, reinforced by the Rockefeller millions?"

TIME TO GO SWIMMING

Even on the sands of Manhattan Beach, N. Y., they couldn't forget their chorus training. So here is a human sum dial with a pretty girl for every hour of the day, and one more for good measure. Time? What time to you like? The girls are from the "Merry World Revue."

"I believe that the people ought to have the right of an effective referendum on war, on the World Court, on the Volstead act, and on every question that vitally affects the lives, the liberties, and the economic status of the people."

BARBERS MUST HAVE LICENSE TO PRACTICE

Madison—(P)—Wisconsin residents unlicensed as barbers, who occasionally shear the locks of others or work improvement upon hirsute adornment for tips, violate the law, the attorney general ruled Monday.

District Attorney R. H. Fischer of Shawano county asked for an opinion. He cited the case of a resident of his city who was occasionally using his talent developed in the army to accommodate friends. He did not charge regular shop prices but accepted tips.

"Accepting tips for cutting hair without a barbers license although no charges are made, is in violation of our barber law," declared the opinion of the state's legal department.

SOCIETY PUTS 295 CHILDREN IN COUNTY HOMES

Nearly 200 Outagamie-co
Youngsters Placed for Adoption

Caring for dependent, neglected, or homeless children in Wisconsin regardless of race, age or religion is one of the chief aims of the Children's Home society of Wisconsin, of which the Rev. Fred C. Brayton, Appleton, is a district superintendent.

"During the 34 years we have been in existence, 197 children from Outagamie-co have benefited by being placed in homes for adoption, and residents of this county have adopted 225," Mr. Brayton said. The society has found homes for or cared for 4,342 children since its beginning in 1892.

The Wisconsin organization founded by the Rev. J. P. Dysart of Milwaukee, is a branch of the national society which operates in 37 states. Headquarters for the society are at the Children's Home building, 2825 Cedar-st., Milwaukee.

STUDY CHILD'S HOME
Through its field workers the society investigates the family conditions back of a child and helps in the reestablishment of its natural home with its people if possible. Medical examination is provided for the child that it may not be handicapped physically in its struggle for existence and following the placing of a child in a new home, the organization keeps in touch with the foster homes and insures the best environment.

Another of the services of the society is caring for unmarried mothers for three months. The mother and her baby are given a home and boarded and as a result of the care the girls learn motherhood is sacred; they are taught to love their children and many times, through arrangements with families, the girls keep their babies.

Last year, of 184 unmarried mothers cases were handled by the society, 136 were boarded for three months and the other 48 were provided for without the necessity of free board. Of these 136, 90 kept their babies and the other 56 children were placed in homes for adoption.

WORKS WITH CLUBS
The society keeps in touch with all communities through the aid of women's clubs and child welfare organizations. Through its field workers it finds homes for unfortunate children. Miss Adeline Rockwood of Appleton is a field worker for the organization with headquarters at Antigo.

one of the directors of the society and F. J. Harwood is a member of the board of reference. W. W. Perry, D. D., Milwaukee, is president emeritus of the society and Malcolm K. Whyte of Milwaukee is acting president.

During the past year, according to Mr. Brayton, the organization spent about $50,000 in its work. Michigan spends about $300,000 and Illinois $150,000 for the same work. The money is raised by solicitation. The cost of caring for a mother and her baby for three months is approximately $100. According to Mr. Brayton, 28 people in the Appleton district have offered to pay the cost of caring for a mother and her baby for three months. Five of these people are from Appleton. In addition to this Mr. Brayton has raised $2900 toward the new home which was purchased as a memorial to the Rev. Mr. Dysart.

BLAINE SCHEDULES 4 ADDRESSES IN COUNTY

Allen Cites Reasons Why Extension Division Office
Was Moved Here

Three thousand, six hundred forty-three students have enrolled in University of Wisconsin Extension division courses in the Second district for the years 1924-26, a gain of 705 over the 2,938 enrolled in 1923-24, according to the biennial report of Chester Allen in charge of the Second division office here.

The greatest number of students are taking English courses, a total of 771 took these courses. History was second with 473. Others are education, 294; business, 245; mathematics, 214; languages, 128 and sociology, 113. There were 46 classes conducted by the division in the last two years an increase of ten over the previous two years, the report shows. Two of the classes were in Appleton and were in engineering and foremanship. Sheboygan had the greatest number of classes of any city in the district.

with 11. Classes in other cities were Fond du Lac, ten; Oshkosh, six; Green Bay, two; Manitowish, three; Marinette, two; Waupun, two; Sheboygan Falls, Clintonville, Two Rivers, Hartford, Menasha, Neenah and Oconto Falls, one each.

In addition there 66 lyceum courses were offered. Two-hundred communities used the package library system offered by the district and 3,196 package libraries were circulated.

Among the principal reasons given in Mr. Allen's report for changing the division office from Oshkosh to Appleton were that Appleton is in the center of a much larger population than Oshkosh, is better located in the geographical center of the district, and that Appleton has shown a steady growth in population in the last 15 years while Oshkosh has remained stationary in this respect. Other reasons cited for the change were that enrollment in courses is greater with Appleton as a center than Oshkosh as headquarters and that Appleton is easily reached by bus and has a large population on all sides while Oshkosh is cut off on the east by Lake Winnebago and on the west by Lake Butte des Morts.

Learning things

CHILDREN aren't taught words by syllables any more, but by their meanings. They learn it's the use of a word that counts—not merely its pleasing sound.

When you buy, you know it's the use of a product that counts, not merely its pleasing sound. You can learn its uses and all it means—before you buy. If you read the advertisements, you know definitely how a certain refrigerator will act in your own kitchen; how that furniture polish will improve your own chairs. What is advertised has to do what it's advertised to do. Advertisements are honest. They invite too many thousands of testers not to be honest. Their continued advertising proves them honest! You take advertised facts on faith—as you take the dictionary on faith. You know that the perfume, hosiery, canned goods they describe are the perfumes, hosiery, canned goods widely enjoyed. You read advertisements to know the true meaning of things before you invest in their use.

NEIGHBORS' WIVES

John rode down to work the morning, something inside seemed to be whispering that it was to be an eventful day. The sun was warm, and faces about him in the street car radiated cheer; breakfast, in the old millar restaurant next door to his building, had never tasted better.

A day—he recalled a malar race-track saying—press a luck.

Briggs was at work ahead of him. Well, partner, and the little artist ore a broad grin, "do you know no's Kelly and Jones, biggest?"

"Schuyler and Lowry Hats?"

"Right—and that's the client I've decided we're going to get. We'll aim our artillery at their biggest target."

"The boy's getting ambitious," John laughed, amused at Briggs' enthusiasm. "We've got a fat chance." Briggs frowned. "Now hold on. Did you know their contract expires shortly for the first of the year?"

"No."

"Did you know that their publication advertising this year amounted to something like two hundred thousand dollars?"

"That much? Where'd you get your information?"

"Never mind. Now, a friend of mine, who's a crackerjack salesman, willing to go after clients for us in the regular commission basis. I liked it over with him last night, fellow named Harris. He's been selling automobiles, but he knows a thing or two about the agency business—and he's a great salesman, John."

"Well," John began, but Briggs went on.

"Now, since you've made me a part of junior partner I've been studying things. Out of your fifteen per cent is net, isn't it?"

"That's about right."

"Well, is eighteen thousand a year going after? Say we deduct ten per cent of that for Harris, it leaves us land it—what's it worth while?"

"Briggs," and John sat down to explain. "It would be worth while if we were only half of that—or a quarter—or a tenth, even. But there are things about this business you don't understand that I'm just beginning to understand myself. Now, does it strike you as rather odd that Kelly and Jones should have taken a Kelly at business instead of one of the high-powered agencies? Does it?"

"You mean," the little artist suggested, "that Kelly has a pull?"

"I mean," John told him, "that Kelly is a sharpshooter, and there's more than one advertising manager who's getting his palm greased by Kelly and Jones. I mean that Kelly splits his commissions with the Schuyler advertising manager. Do you understand now?"

"Crooked stuff, eh?"

"Well, personally I'd be inclined to say the advertising manager was the crook—more so than Kelly. I've ever done business that way and I ever will, and the fellows that do it are just making it hard for the rest of us who care something about ethics. Now you see why I don't think it's any use going after Schuyler and Lowry."

"But," and Briggs was smiling mysteriously, "what would you say I told you that Schuyler and Lowry were getting a new advertising manager?"

"You mean that?" John sat up in his chair.

"Harris told me they were making a change. That's what suggested the idea to him of going after them for us. He's acquainted with the man who's going in. But," and Briggs smiled a little, "he also says the new man will most likely want to let big agency handle it."

"We'll go after it anyway," John got to his feet, his jaw thrust out.

"Now you're talking!" Briggs approved. "I wanted to see if you were going to try it. Come in here and I'll show you a fairly complete file of our ads."

But where, John was thinking as he ran through the magazines Briggs ad turned over to him, was the secretary Menefee had promised to end over? The morning was still young, but already three young women had been in to see him, each of whom he had promised to interview later.

Where was this paragon Dick had recommended? Oh, if it did happen to be someone with real intelligence, capable of running the office without asking questions—someone who couldn't ask a fancy salary.

And suddenly he was thinking gain of Fay.

What did it all amount to, anyway, without Fay around?

Suppose he did put this thing overland the Schuyler business, give Kelly and Nat Graham a licking. Who was going to be glad of it besides himself and Briggs, and of course, Dick Menefee?

He went into Briggs' office to borrow the artist's sheets, but he bumped himself with cutting out the hat advertisements. Here, he was thinking, he stuffed one of them, was chance for improvement—a half one, say, of a pearl gray spring hat, lying on an elegant hall table, and pair of gloves thrown carelessly beside it. And beneath it the slogan, Hats for gentlemen.

And another one—a photograph of a man in a straw hat with a decoy on that Briggs could work out in later color. And still another—a painting by Briggs of a man handing his hat to a check girl in a restaurant. That could be done in color, too, or perhaps in black and white oil.

He was thinking as he clipped ads, gathering ideas as he went on; visualizing layouts; thinking copy. This would be a great account—he'd like to do it—always had had hat advertising.

Miss White came in noiselessly. "A day to see you, Mr. Milburn. She said Dr. Menefee sent her."

"Where, Miss White?"

"In the conference room. She has little girl with her."

John frowned. "A baby? Humph!

thousand dollars for a Christmas present."

"Now there's something suspicious about that, Fay."

But she placed a finger to his lips. "Now don't ask so many questions. I'm tired, and I want to get into a bath tub."

"I'll take you to a hotel."

"No, Dick made me promise to come out there. You and I are to stay with them until the house is ready for us. Oh, yes—another thing I forgot my lines myself when you came in the room. I was supposed to tell you that I saw your ad in the paper for a secretary and I wanted the job. Will you give it to me?"

John laughed.

"I'm serious," Fay insisted. "Dick told me you needed someone really competent. And you know I'd love to do it—until you got on your feet once more, at least. Don't you think I'd do? You know, my old boss thought pretty well of me. It almost broke his heart when I left him the other day."

"Well now, Fay, if you really mean it, of course you'd be the best person in the world. But Judith, you know."

"I can get a nurse for Judith. John, let me. It would be so much fun to help you in your fight, Dick and told of what you were up something about a man when he's in need of help that a woman can't resist. I don't profess to understand very much about the other sex. I'm no analyst of the female psychology—but you needed Fay John. And so she's back."

"God knows I needed her, Dick," John breathed and pressed the other's hand in both his own. "I'm grateful—more so than you'll ever know."

Two weeks passed—and Christmas with them. And it was the happiest Christmas John and Fay had ever known. Away from their people true, but having each other, and Judith. Fay had taken over the running of the office and John was free from bothersome detail and routine. Miss White helped, and Fay was sure that, properly broken in, the girl would become a competent secretary.

With Briggs, John planned a series of layouts designed to attract the eye of the Schuyler and Lowry advertising manager. Briggs' friend Harris, already had interviewed him, and sent back reports that were far from discouraging.

"It means," Briggs said, "that if we can hit them in the eye we've got a good chance."

"Well," from John grimly, "we'll hit them then."

And so they worked their heads off, knowing all along that Kelly, Jones and Graham were throwing everything they had into keeping the account and cheered by the knowledge that it was at least a fair fight now and that nothing Graham said about them would hurt them in any way, especially now that Fay was back.

Fay was called in time after time to criticize their ideas, especially those designed to promote the sale of felt hats for women—a business which with Schuyler and Lowry was little more than a sideline but which John felt sure could be made into a big thing.

And then John, loaded down with giant-sized brief cases, left town—on bad Graham, one memorable night when they were angling for the Milltown contract—and set out to lay down his cards and bring back an answer.

In his ears were ringing Fay's parting words: "Goodbye, John. You'll win—I know it."

And all the way during that long train ride he was thinking if only he could put this over he'd be made. It would make little difference what other accounts Graham took away—he'd be made. And so he prayed a little, thinking of what it all would mean to Fay, fingering with care the touch the all important brief cases.

And Fay back in Racine typing letters, paying bills, interviewing advertising representatives of newspapers and magazines. Thinking that never before had she been so happy. Back again with John; a little haggard and worn, perhaps, and a little harder, but somehow a little finer.

Three days passed, during which she and Briggs, hoping and praying that John would get what he went after—more because of the effect it would have on John himself than on account of the business—hardly dared speak of the thing that was so close to their hearts.

And then one day Fay answered the telephone to be told that long distance was calling. A sudden sinking of the heart as she waited for John's voice.

Then it came: "Hello—Fay!"

Her Own Way

A GOOD BLUFF

"I turned toward the door of Mr. Stern's office, when he called me back. 'Here, I didn't say for you to go immediately,' he shouted.

"Well that's the way we're going, I answered composedly. 'At that, he came off his high horse, for he knew I was the best hat checker in town and had more friends than any other girl in such a position. He also knew you are the prettiest girl he had ever had at his place. We both meant money to him and he wasn't going to let us go.

"Oh, Mamie, be yourself. Go back and take care of your little forlorn chicken if you want to, but remember that the first complaint I hear of either of you, out the 'firm' goes." After that things went along fairly smooth. Mamie acted as a buffer to me at the restaurant and I helped her out when her mother's complaints nearly drove her wild at home. I grew in time to be what Chuck would have called 'hardboiled'. The unseemly clink of silly compliments meant nothing to me and I was able either to ignore or turn aside with an irrelevant remark, the too obvious flatteries of the mashers.

It was impossible, however, to act at all times as though I did not understand the advances of Horton, Stern's friend, and I would not let Mamie interfere as she wanted to when others of our patrons' speeches and actions were too obnoxious. I could not let her lose her job even if I did mine.

I kept congratulating myself that I had never seen anyone in the restaurant who had known me before coming here, for although I was making considerable money with my wages and tips, I knew I was going to leave my place as soon as possible. I did not like it in any way.

I grew to hate the ordinary "man about town"—the "lobby lizard," as Mamie called him. The difference in his attitude to the young women he brought to luncheon and dinner and the girl employee of the restaurant, was an insult to womanhood. I have known fathers and sons to make remarks to Mamie and me who would knock a man down for making the same remark to their womanfolk.

For a long time I had managed to pass this sort of thing over, but one evening the climax came. (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.) TOMORROW: Discovered

OLD MALT HOUSE READY TO FALL

Complain to Fire Department Over Condition of Ancient Building

Complaints have been made to the Appleton fire department of the hazardous condition of the old malt house on N. Superior-st. This building formerly was the property of the Wisconsin Malt and Grain company which has passed out of existence and is now owned by the First Trust company of Appleton.

The building which faces Superior-st is about 50 years old and the brick wall has been worn by the weather until it seems ready to fall. At times single bricks and pieces of bricks which have been worn loose drop to the ground. At one time the street was roped off and the worst worn bricks were removed but time and the weather again has reduced the wall to a state of disrepair. People who must pass the building do so on the opposite side of the street. The roof of the building is also caving, and according to several neighbors, the building seems ready to collapse.

Len Smith and his playmates, representing Kimberly in the Fox River Valley baseball loop started on their summer vacation Sunday afternoon at the Kimberly ball park and were gone for 2-3 of an inning about 2:30. By the time they had returned the Appleton squad had collected seven hits off Smith's delivery, his team mates had helped out with seven glaring errors, and Appleton had scored nine times, enough to win any ball game. Refke had one bad inning thereafter and Kimberly scored four times to make the final score 9-4 for Appleton.

In the second inning, two bunched blows aided by a stolen base and an over throw of second by the third, Kimberly a run to win in the third, or what would be the tenth, as the seven first innings were played on Memorial day. The score would be 4-3. The feature of the tilt was the return of Crowe, Appleton's released hurler, who appeared in a K-C uniform, causing Manager Baetz to protest both games. He pulled the "Grover Alexander" on his old mates, holding them to eight hits in 11-3 frames and winning the tilt which he had started to win for Appleton on Memorial day, by allowing one hit, that by Baetz, his old boss.

In the opener every man on the Appleton squad with the exception of Friebe and Refke hit safely and everyone scored by but Tarnow. Ashman got four hits in five trips up while Goshka, Bent, Baetz and Schultz each had two. Schultz, Tarnow, Baetz and Ashman had twin sackers. Baetz hit would have been a homer in any part but Kimberly. It was high above the left field fence but hit the top of a scoreboard which extended above the top of the wall.

A two-game win for either Appleton or Kimberly would have put the winning crew in third place in the league ahead of Green Bay as that crew lost to Neenah. Both teams were Oshkosh and Fond du Lac. The leaders, gained a half game by the Neenah's second win over the Bays, their only victim this year, but Appleton or Kimberly failed to shoot all the way to third by their split.

Cooke, Vanderloop and Hartjes each hit safely twice for Kimberly, while Vandy stole a base and got a sacrifice. He also got out hit in two batters in the final tilt, getting the winning run, and a stolen base. However, he erred in the second. In the second tilt Len Smith got two hits in two batters and drove in the big run.

Goshka opened the first tilt by going out pitcher to first. Then Bent and Ashman singled in a row. Hartjes at bat tempted to pick Bent off second, but his throw went into centerfield. Cooke threw to Vanderloop to get Bent at third and when Vandy missed the ball Bent scored. Ashman followed him across the platter when Hartjes, who had trotted over to back up third on Cooke's throw, couldn't get back quick enough and Schell on first also couldn't get to the plate to stop a throw there by Vandy. It rolled to the stand. Friebe got a hit on Theln's error at short and took second on Baetz's single to center. Schultz followed with a double to center, scoring both men and Tarnow doubled to left to put Cully on third. Radtke singled to left. Schultz scoring and Tarnow going out first to catcher when he attempted to make home on the play.

Radtke stole second while Refke was drawing a pass at Goshka, up for the left. Radtke scoring and Refke moving to third. Bent hit to Vanderloop who nussed up the play. Refke scoring. Ashman's drive to the same place resulted in another error and Bent traveled all the way to third. Ashman stole second and took third when L. Theln uncorked another misce. Ben scoring. Baetz ended the spasm by flying out to Cooke.

Kimberly threatened in the second when a hit batter and a single put men on first and second, with one down, but when Pocan dropped a perfect bunt in front of the pan, Ashman's perfect pickup and peg, cut off Theln at third and Schell fled out. In the third Vanderloop singled and Smith walked with one down, but on the next play Schultz stopped a hot throw in the mud and slid, throwing Vandy out by a close margin at third while sitting on the ground. Crowe had relieved Smith and Appleton's only chance until up to this time was in the fourth when, Baetz the first man up hit a double, with the high scoreboard stopping a homer. Crowe then walked Schultz and fanned Tarnow, Radtke and Refke in a row. In the sixth two fielder's choices stopped a Baetz run. Baetz got on as an error but was forced by Schultz who went to second on a wild pitch. Then Tarnow walked and Radtke hit

WASHINGTON USING ALL BUT BATBOY NOWADAYS

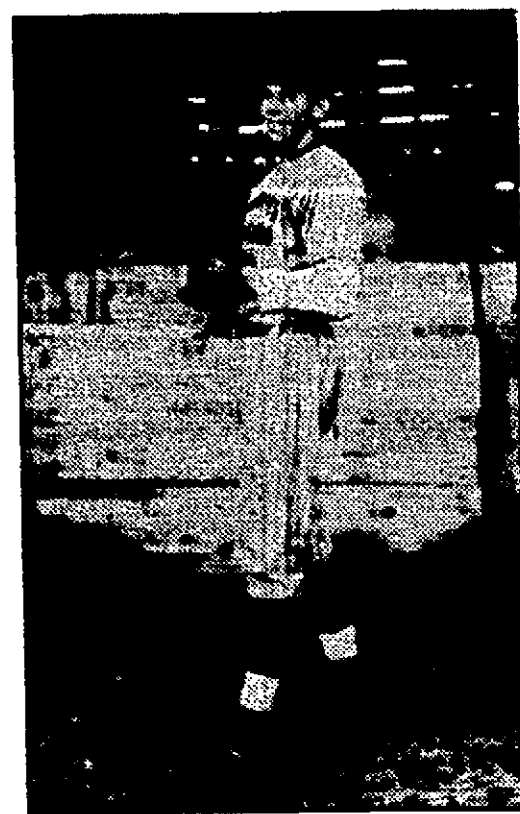

Stanley Harris has been using plenty of players in an effort to stave off defeat of late. Most every game sees from 17 to 20 in the lineup with Sam Rice and Blagoev being about the only ones playing through. It's a somewhat different tale than that unfolded a year ago.

To Crowe who got Schultz at third. Refke fanned. Then Kimberly broke loose, aided by a bad inning by the Appleton players. Theln started things with a single and Courtney walked. Refke hit Crowe, filling the sacks with none down. Hartjes singled to left, scoring Theln and again filling the sacks.

Courtney scored on a passed ball by Ashman and the other men moved up a notch. Then Pocan went out to Tarnow to Radtke, Crowe scoring, and Schell went out by the same route. Hartjes scoring. Cooke fanned. In the seventh both teams threatened. Bent and Ashman scratching hits in a row with one down. Then Friebe forced Bent, Vanderloop unassisted and Baetz went out. Crowe to first. Smith and Courtney got hits for Kimberly but three outs were mixed in. In the ninth, Appleton lost a chance to score by slow work on the paths. Goshka singled and went to second when Bent went out at first. Ashman slapped a hit to center and Goshka was caught between third and home in the mud, when Cooke shot the ball to Theln who threw to Hartjes. While Hartjes and Vanderloop were running Goshka down Rod moved toward third. Hartjes tagged Goshka and threw to third where Vandy got Rod coming into the sack for a double play. For Kimberly Vanderloop hit with one down and Smith walked, but Theln hit to Schultz who got Smith at second and Tarnow doubled the hitter at first.

In the second tilt Baetz's only hit for Appleton went for naught when three men behind him went out. With two out in the first or eighth frame, Smith and Theln singled but Courtney fanned. In the second, Kell on first on an error was trapped off for a double play when Schell fanned. Ashman heaving the third strike to Radtke, Kimberly won when with two out Vanderloop singled, stole second and went to third on Ashman's throw in an attempt to catch him off the sack. Then Smith dumped a Texas leaguer over second just out of reach of both infielders and outfielders, to win the tilt.

HOLDS OLD MATES SCORELESS

CLARENCE "DATS" CROWE

Sporting the uniform of the Kimberly-Clark Co. Clarence "Dats" Crowe, hurler for Appleton valley loop ball teams for the last two years and a star of the industrial and grade school loops before that, held his former teammates scoreless for 11-13 innings Sunday afternoon at Kimberly ball park. Relieving Smith in the opening frame of the first tilt, he allowed 7 scattered hits in 8-13 innings, but it was too late to win with Refke going fine and supported well. In the second game, three innings, he allowed but one hit and broke Appleton's win streak of three straight games.

He was released by Appleton this week for indifferent hurling and Kimberly immediately took advantage of the fact to add its fourth Appleton man to the lineup. "Dats" with the kind of day he likes, cool and dark, with an added incentive of revenge in his heart, then turned the "Grover Alexander" on his old mates. A peculiar fact about the result was that he pitched for both teams during the game, finally winning for the K-C men. He started the tilt for Appleton on Memorial day and hurled seven frames when it was called on account of rain with the count knotted. Then he hurled the last three frames for the "other side" to win the tilt for Kimberly after trying to win it for Appleton on Memorial day and incidentally to break a perfect good win streak. Without his aid, the Baetzmen would have advanced a pair from Kimberly and taken another from the loop leaders as the Kimberly hurling staff was "no more."

Northwestern Tank Coach To Swim In Badger Pools

Evanston, Ill.—As a pioneer piece of work, to promote and help keep the water sports in a still more prominent position, Coach Thomas R. Robinson of the Northwestern University championship swimmers, leaves here Aug. 9, for a three months tour of the northern states.

In each and every place where a pool is available during his trip that will cover thousands of miles and take him through fifteen states and two Canadian provinces, Tom will give his instructive swimming and life saving exhibitions.

Besides trying to improve and standardize the strokes demonstrated and taught, Tom will give exhibitions of his new "Clio" game, the game everyone can play.

He will also travel as a representative of the Central chapter of the National Red Cross association. During the past year the Northwestern coach holds the record of passing more life savers than any other instructor in the chapter, and incomplete reports give him the temporary leadership of the country in this respect.

Tom's itinerary will carry him through Wisconsin, Minnesota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Idaho, Washington, British Columbia, Alberta, back through Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona, Utah, Colorado, Nebraska, Missouri, Southern Illinois and home about November 10. Mrs. Robinson and their two children, will accompany Tom.

Returning home, Tom will spend the remaining days of his leave of absence from Northwestern University in completing his two new books on swimming. One of these will deal with the sport itself and the strokes while the other will deal with the competitive side of the subject.

HELPFUL HINTS GOLFING STARS

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS MAGAZINE, CHICAGO

JIM BARNES—PLAYING THE MID-IRON
In a general way the swing for a mid-iron is the same as with a driver, except in the following details: In the first place, the swing is, or ought to be, shorter. Also the shaft of the club is shorter, and the player must, accordingly, stand closer to the ball. This tends, or should tend, to make the swing more upright—also the stance is possibly a little more open. There is no reason to feel that the right hand predominates in the swing more than it does with the driver. As the name suggests, the mid-iron is a club for shots ranging from 135 to 170 yards, depending on the player. For longer distances a more powerful club should be chosen. Thus the swing ought to be shortened to little if anything more than a half swing, no more than a three-quarter. Naturally, with a shorter swing the player has better control. Hence he can be a little more certain in applying force in hitting the ball. This gives the impression that the mid-iron stroke is more of a hit. As a matter of fact, there may be just as much hitting with a full swing.

KEN DICKINSON DEFENDS TITLE FROM HARD FOES

Appleton Star Paired With
1925 Runnerup in Qualifying
Round at 10:15
Tuesday

BULLETIN

Milwaukee—K. S. Dickinson, Appleton, reigning champion among state amateur golfers, and Morgan E. Manchester, Madison, runnerup to Dickinson last year, are paired for the qualifying round of medal play in the 1926 state meet. They will play the round starting at 10:15 Tuesday morning. Most of the state players are placed in the Tuesday bracket of the two-day qualifying round, thus allowing them an extra day at home for business. Milwaukee stars, including many former champs and runners-up, will play on Monday.

Milwaukee (P)—More than 300 knights of the masher are entered in the Wisconsin Amateur Golf association tournament which opens Monday at the Ozaukee country club. Because of the large entry, the first two days, will be used in determining the qualifiers in the championship flight.

A tenth of those who tee off in the qualifying round will be entered in the championship flight. The play will be for eighteen holes with the exception of the final match, from which the 1926 champion will come.

Many of the old timers in Wisconsin golf are entered, with some new blood showing which will tend to make the outcome uncertain.

EXTRA STRONG FIELD

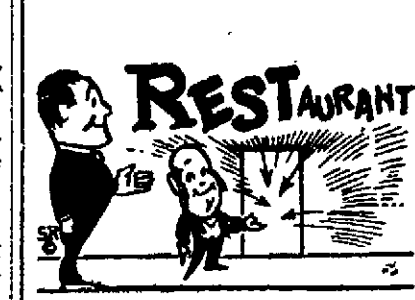

Kenneth Dickinson, Appleton, present champion will defend his title against one of the strongest fields ever recorded, according to Henry Tyrrell, secretary of the association. In the lists against him, he will find two former champions, Ned Allis, of the Milwaukee Country Club, who has held the championship less than seven times, and H. W. Gardner, of Blue Mound, 1924 champion. Then follows Morgan Manchester of Madison, runner up to Dickinson last year, and Billy Sixty, Milwaukee, who was finalist in 1924 and on several other occasions.

The rapid strides golf has taken in Wisconsin is shown by the entry list which included a greater number of low handicap men among the 300 entered than in any previous tournament. There is so much new blood that the matter of qualifying is somewhat uncertain, even for those who have stood the tests of the semi-final rounds in previous years.

Reg Scully, Len Fonz and Eddy Hayden, all of Milwaukee are shooting close to par golf, and with the Ozaukee course in its best shape, the trio will make it uncomfortable for the leaders of former years.

PUTTING IMPORTANT

Entries who have played over the Ozaukee course during the past week are of the opinion that putting will tell the tale of the 1926 championship. It is agreed that the putter is the instrument with which most championships are manufactured, but this year a putting touch is more necessary than formerly. The greens at the Ozaukee club are clover greens, the sort on which the pitch will hold and the chip will have but a short run, and likewise the putt. The lip of the cup probably will account for many strokes, unless the player "gives his ball a chance."

BREWERS WIN GAME BUT LOSE IN RACE

Indianapolis—The Brewers opened the important August campaign here Sunday afternoon in a winning, if not impressive, fashion. The final difference was 7 to 1 and proved, if nothing else, that the Indians are not good mudders. The game was played in a quagmire, with a foot of water inundating parts of the playing surface and before the Indians would start it was agreed to play only one game.

SUSIE'S DOUBLE

DONA DUVAL THEIS

Over in France they call Dona Duval Theis the double of Suzanne Lenglen—and she does look a bit like the incomparable one, doesn't she? Miss Theis recently arrived in California where she will act as tennis teacher at Kentwood.

Never before was the young Olympic champion won in less than five sets and never before has Tilden, during his long reign at the net, been so decisively beaten at the height of a tennis campaign. The two California girls met in the final round of the Maldstone club invitation tournament, and Miss Willis triumphed with the loss of only five games, 6-3, 6-2.

For the first time since her return to the courts, the champion carried her battle to the net without hesitating, smashing and volleying with old time vigor.

About 3000 workmen are occupied in building operations at Canberra, the new federal capital of Australia. When the seat of government is transferred there, sometime in 1927, it is estimated that the population of the city will have increased from 4000 to 10,000.

Tennis King Badly Beaten by Youthful Rival; Helen Comes Back Strong

New York (U)—Critics who have looked with dubious eyes on William T. Tildens attempt to link the stage and tennis courts in one career Monday had new evidence to support their forecast of a decline in his racket at the hands of Vincent Richards in mastery. His crushing defeat Sunday, the final round of the Metropolitan championship 6-3 6-4, 4-6 6-3, marked the third and most decisive triumph scored over him this year by the youthful rival who has challenged his supremacy for six successive seasons.

While Tildens was going down to defeat another national champion about whose title defense tennisdom has been worrying, Helen Willis, whose tour of Europe was halted two months ago by an operation for appendicitis, gave convincing evidence of her complete recovery of strength and form Sunday by easily defeating Mary K. Browne, former champion and captain of the Wightman cup team.

WEEK'S GAMES
Monday—Y.M.C.A. vs Bankers.
Wednesday—Legion vs Post-Crescent.
Friday—Interlakes vs Meyer Press.

With about a month of play left in the City Twilight Softball loop, three decisive games, as far as the standings are concerned, are on the cards for this week. The loop-leading Legion and Y.M.C.A. teams meet squads rated slightly below them while the Meyer Press and Interlakes squads, old rivals all year, meet in the big battle to keep out of the circuit cellar.

On Monday, grounds permitting, the Triangles and the Bankers will be in the last few games, have become a dangerous contender, raising themselves to third place within a game and a half of the top. Though the Triangles, with a regular team, are favored an upset is not at all unlikely. This would raise the Bankers to a half game from second place.

Wednesday, the Legion tackles the fast-slipping Post-Crescent crew. This team has lost its last four games after starting the season on top or near, always a constant threat to the leaders. The two cellar squads have beaten it in the last two weeks and the winner Friday will rise above it if it loses Wednesday. The P-C men gave the Legion a tough 5-4 struggle last time, however, and are all set to go down fighting. A new outfielder, to strengthen the bat department, and a new hurler, a star of former softball loops, will face the Legionaries in an attempt to upset things and start the P-C men on a win streak which will put them somewhere near the top when the season ends. The Legion is a heavy favorite to win.

On Friday, the Meyer Press and Interlakes, both conquerors of the P-C crew in the last two games, will meet, the winner to come out of the cellar and probably shoot all the way to fourth should the Steward men lose Wednesday. In the last struggle between the two squads the Pressmen won in a belated rally in an extra-tight battle, but since then the McCourt crew has whipped the first-place Triangles and the Post-Crescent.

Win Streak to 11

Opposition to western monopoly of the first division in the National league has broken out anew. The Chicago Cubs have been ditched into the second rank and a Brooklyn menace once again threatens the leaders.

Doug McWeeney came out on top of Charlie Root in a pitching duel Sunday with Brooklyn taking the decision. 2 to 1, from the Cubs. The Robins also took fourth place and with three consecutive victories now tucked away rate one and a half games from the third place Cardinals and but six contests from the league leading Pirates.

It was a hard defeat for Root. He allowed but five hits whereas McWeeney yielded seven. Johnny Butler single drove home Marriott with the deciding run in the fifth.

Behind the steady pitching of McQuillan, the Giants chalked up their third straight triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals, 7 to 2. Jackson and Kelly led the New York attack against pitcher Alexander, contributing a home run apiece. Jim Bottomley produced his fifteenth circuit wallop of the season for St. Louis.

Dan O'Leary, veteran walker, performed his act before the main show was on at the Polo Grounds. He circled the bases five times in the way of collecting his fifth birthday and the feat was accomplished in 4 minutes 34 seconds.

The latest winning streak of the Yankees was extended to eleven games when the White Sox were subdued, 8 to 4, on their home diamond in Chicago. The Huguen had won six struggles of their present tour of the west and have yet to taste defeat. Herb Pannock was victor in the box and it was his seventeenth triumph.

Cleveland hung the Indian sign on the Boston Red Sox, 2 to 1, stretching the winning streak of Tris Speaker's tribe to seven straight. The clubs battled through eight innings without a score and in the ninth, after the Hose had put over a new outfielder, permitted Spurgeon and Speaker to come home. Levens gave four hits and Rufing five.

Staging and uphill battle, the St. Louis Browns rallied in the eighth and scored three runs to nose out the Senators, 8 to 7. Schang's circuit wallop with one on tied tied the count and later a single by Williams drove in the deciding run. Judge and Robertson also had home runs.

The Browns had previously lost eight in a row. Philadelphia's engagement with the Detroit Tigers was postponed on account of rain.

WOMAN KNOCKED UNCONSCIOUS IN AUTO COLLISION

Mrs. Henry Wagner Strikes
Head Against Front Seat
When Cars Meet

Striking her head against the front seat of their automobile when the machine collided with a car driven by Joseph London, Oshkosh, Mrs. Henry Wagner of Waupaca, was rendered unconscious for two hours Sunday evening. The accident occurred on highway 15, about two miles west of Weyauwega. Accompanied by his wife and Miss Ola Lincoln, Mr. Wagner was driving his sedan to their home in Waupaca, after they had spent the day in Menasha. London was returning to Oshkosh with his wife and two other women. The front end of the Wagner car was badly damaged, and the London machine was almost totally wrecked. Both machines were forced into a ditch at the side of the road after the collision. Mrs. Wagner and the other occupants of the Wagner car were taken to Waupaca by Marion Broz, who was driving an automobile in the vicinity. Mrs. Wagner's injury was reported Monday as not serious.

GREEN BAY MAN HURT IN CRASH

Auto Strikes Telephone Pole
on Highway 15 One Mile
South of Kimberly

James J. Lally, 211 S. Chestnut-st., Green Bay, was severely injured when the large sedan in which he was riding crashed into a telephone pole on highway 15 about a mile south of the Kimberly station at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Blanche Pelky, Green Bay, the other occupant of the car, received minor cuts and bruises. The driver of the car, which was traveling south on the highway, was attempting to pass another car and apparently did not see a third auto which was traveling north. Suddenly seeing the car which was approaching directly in the path of the Green Bay machine, the driver swerved quickly to the right in an attempt to avoid a collision, lost control of the car and crashed into a telephone pole, breaking it off. It is not known whether Lally or the woman was driving the car. An ambulance conveyed the injured couple to St. Elizabeth hospital. It was at first thought that Lally's back had been broken, but examination revealed only several cuts and bruises. He may be suffering from internal injuries, according to the attending physician.

His companion complained of pains in her back, but after an examination, she was released from the hospital. The car, which was a new one, was badly damaged.

BURNS FATAL TO FREEDOM YOUTH

Elmer Brockman Succumbs to Injuries Received in Explosion

Burns received when a dredge engine which he was attempting to start backfired and exploded the priming gasoline, caused the death of Elmer Brockman, 19 son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brockman of Freedom, at 8 o'clock Saturday night. The accident occurred last Monday noon.

Elmer Brockman, a brother, and a member of the Appleton fire department, submitted to a blood transfusion last Tuesday afternoon in an attempt to save the injured man's life, but the latter showed little improvement Thursday.

Brockman had been employed by the Mulgrus Sons company of Du-buque, which is in charge of the Outagamie co. farm drainage project in the town of Freedom, and was helping a fellow employee start the dredge engine. Brockman was standing directly behind the engine and received the full force of the explosion between the abdomen and knees.

In attempting to beat out the flames, Brockman was severely burned about his arms and hands. Lester Wiese and Benjamin Wendt, town of Freedom farmers who were watching the dredge, extinguished the fire.

Survivors of the young man are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brockman and two brothers, Elmer of Appleton and Leland of Freedom. Funeral services will be held at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from the home and at 1:30 from the Moravian church. Interment will be made at the young man was a member of Riverside cemetery, Appleton.

Markets

STOCK PRICES MOVE HIGHER

Public Utility, Motor and Investment Rail Shares in Demand

New York—(P)—Stock prices continued to work higher as trading was resumed Monday with a good demand in evidence for Public Utility, Motor and investment railroad shares, Baltimore and Ohio reached a new top price for the year and substantial opening gains were recorded by Studebaker, Chrysler, North American and Radio in response to reports of higher earnings.

Unlike recent market sessions, the early buying demonstration embraced both railroad and industrial shares, with the popular issues in both groups moving forward in a quiet and orderly manner. The diversion of trading interest into the carrier stocks late last week carried the price average of this list to within striking distance of the year's high record and seemed to give greater stability to the upward movement of the entire market. High grade issues such as Delaware and Hudson, Atlantic Coast Line and New York Central were favored in the early dealings. Meanwhile General Motors, Hudson, Nash and other automobile issues jumped 1 to 3 points in the first half hour in anticipation of still larger sales after the introduction of new models. Foreign exchanges opened firm with demand Sterling unchanged and French and Belgian francs selling around 2.60 cents.

Early heavy profit taking in several influential issues, notably United States Steel, Consolidated Gas and Chesapeake and Ohio failed to intimidate the poets who were operating in other shares, and the general list worked steadily higher as outside purchasing orders began to be executed. General Motors advanced 3 points before midday and advances of 3 to 4 points were also established in DuPont, National Lead, Loose Wiles Biscuit, Case Threshing Machine, Butterick Company and American Sumatra Tobacco Certificates. The removal rate on call loans was advanced to 4 1/2 per cent.

The closing was strong. Total sales approximated 1,800,000 shares.

DEMOCRATS TURN TO REED TO LEAD BATTLE IN 1928

Missouri's Fighting Senator Looked Upon as Democratic Moses

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington—Watch Senator James A. Reed of Missouri.
All the signs are that he is gaining strength as the Democratic presidential possibility.
Among politicians still in Washington—despite the congressional recess they're constantly drifting out and in with tidings from all over the country—the increasing frequency of references to him, as such, is surprising.
Here are some of the things one hears in his favor:

He has a tremendous personality. He has ability. He's an indomitable fighter. In his home state he has proved himself a wonderful campaigner and vote getter.

Al Smith has all these qualities, but he's known somewhat too exclusively as a wet.

So is Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland.

While Reed's wet, he stands for numerous other policies which ought to take some of the curse off his wetness even in dry territory.

William C. McAdoo would be all right for the dry, but has nothing to recommend him to any of the wets. No wet could find any fault with Reed and, as previously remarked, he does have certain things to recommend him to some, at least, of the dries.

Another thing, the mid west is clearly indicated as a good place to pick presidential candidates from in 1928. Reed is a mid-western man. Smith and Ritchie are just as far east as they possibly could be without falling into the Atlantic ocean. McAdoo is western but the Pacific coast is rather too far west.

There'll be talk of Atlee Pomerene if Ohio elects him to the Senate in November. However, he may not be reelected. Even if he is, there'll be talk also of Gov. Vic Donahey, and, both being Ohioans, they'll tend to nullify one another.

Furthermore, geographically they're not as well situated as Reed with reference to the corn belt.

Neither, although both have national reputations, has either one a national reputation of Reed's proportions.

Reed's a progressive and progressivism seems to be in the atmosphere throughout a considerable part of the United States.

His wetness should endear him to the big wet eastern states and to some few western ones which show damp tendencies.

It will hurt him in the dry south but, to offset that, the south is strongly anti-foreign, and no part of Reed's career has more distinguished him than his fight against foreign entanglements.

He voted against the corn belt's pet farm relief measure, but not because he doesn't believe in farm relief. He simply doesn't believe in a subsidy. The corn belt, discouraged, appears practically to have abandoned the idea of a subsidy, anyway, and to be concentrating on tariff reduction. Reed's for tariff reduction.

Democratic hopes are greatly stimulated by the undoubted split in the Republican ranks. However, they have a split of their own to be closed up, if they're to get any good out of the Republicans. If Reed can manage it he's a wizard.

CHINESE DON'T LIKE NEGRO SPIRITUALS

Peking—(AP)—Negro songs and sentimental ballads of grandmother's day find little appreciation in China. If the recent Chinese Mrs. Mary Jordan's offerings is an indication.
The largest audience that has assembled here for a musical event in many months was sold to the American contralto's negro spirituals and American folk songs. The metropolitan audience granted that she has a beautiful voice but it couldn't react to "Waterboys", "Deep River" and other dusky songs.

More than half a ton of snails were shipped from France to the United States last year.

New finds of footprints of reptiles left in soft sand at least 25,000,000 years ago have just been made in sandstone 1500 feet down from the rim of the Grand Canyon.

In sixty-four cities and towns of the country every house has electric light. Salt Lake City, Utah, is the 100 per cent electrified.

Where Did She Get That Graceful Figure

You remember her of course—not so long ago she was a regular scarecrow—skinny is a mild word for the way she looked.

Just look at her now—look at a woman had a perfect figure—look at her she is the envy of half the girls in town.

It's nothing to get excited about—all she did was to take on a few pounds—filled out the hollow in her face, and chest—any girl who can do this, any down woman can do this, and gain a clean clear complexion, at the same time.

Just get 60 Compound Tablets for 5 cents at Schlicht Bros or any drug store. Take two after each meal and two at bed time and if any extra pounds are on your man, or man either, the extra pounds don't gain at least five pounds in 10 days! Why? Money back! One very thin woman gained 25 pounds in 22 days. Ask for Compound Tablets.

COUNTY SENDS FULL QUOTA TO TRAINING CAMP

More Than 30 Young Men Ready to Leave for Fort Sheridan

Outagamie-co will have a full quota of at least 28 boys at the Citizens Military Training Camp at Fort Sheridan, which opens this week, according to P. O. Keicher, who is in charge of the county enrollment. The county quota is 28 and 38 boys signed up for the camp, but several withdrew later. Mr. Keicher has been unable to make a final checkup as he was confined to the hospital this week, but he said that probably 31 boys still are ready to go.

The Outagamie-co boys have been ordered to leave their homes on Tuesday, arriving at camp the following day. Mr. Keicher will leave for the camp on Monday, Aug. 9, he said.

The state enrollment on July 17 was 1,165 and the quota is 1,398. Only three other counties of the state, including Waupaca, have exceeded their enrollment beside Outagamie, records show. Waupaca has an enrollment of 29 with a 17 quota; Eau Claire 41 with a 30 quota and Chippewa, 45 with an 18 quota. Outagamie had an enrollment of 38 at one time with a 28 quota.

Schoolma'am Passing Out To Make Room For Teachers

Madison, Wis. —(AP)—The "schoolma'am" is rapidly approaching extinction in Wisconsin due to the inroads of a new, highly specialized group of teachers who are nearly as professionalized as doctors and lawyers. She is practically out of a job.

This was the statement of Dean Scott H. Goodnight, director of the summer school of the University of Wisconsin, when asked for an explanation of the large number of summer students here this session. Approximately 2,700 teachers, superintendents and principals are attending summer classes.

"School boards have become discriminating and hard to suit," Dean Goodnight said. "They demand college degrees of their teachers which has resulted in many teachers being thrown out of employment. It is hard to get a job in Wisconsin unless you have the necessary qualifications."

Teachers with normal school certificates, he said, are taking the positions that are left when the more highly trained men and women have secured jobs.

"The type we formerly called 'schoolma'ams' is being crowded out," Dean Goodnight declared. "The new teacher is a businesslike, professional sort of individual who has as high a regard for hard work as a doctor or lawyer."

"The movement started during the war. At a time when wages paid in commercial jobs were much higher than those paid teachers, the teachers left the schools to take advantage of the windfall. School board members were frankly trying to get almost anyone with almost any qualifications to fill the vacancies in the classrooms."

"They found the only way it could be done was to raise the salaries. The higher wages brought a large influx back into the profession. With a higher salary scale in effect, the schoolboards looked about and said to themselves, 'We are paying good salaries, and have a right to demand higher qualifications.'"

"The result has been a tightening up in the profession to the exclusion of the teacher with insufficient training."
